BRIEF DESCRIPTION OF THE TOUR:

On this excursion we will travel first to Toledo to see and photograph the Eurasian Dotterel that at this time of year are passing through their wintering grounds. It is also easy to see other steppe Birds such as the Pin-tailed Sandgrouse, Common and Little Bustards.

Eurasian Dotterel is the smallest of the three Plovers that we can see in our territory reaching 24 cm. of length. Although there are quotations of individuals that have been reproduced in the Pyrenees, their number as a breeding Bird is very limited or in many years null. In breeding plumage, the female is the one that exhibits more intense colors because it is the male that carries out the incubation and care of the chicks. They pass winter in the arid regions of North Africa and Middle East while their reproduction, except for the aforementioned, is mainly in subarctic and tundra areas.

At noon and once we have seen the Eurasian Dotterel we will head to Wetlands of La Mancha to see Birds living in this environment paying special attention to Ferruginous Duck, Great White Egret, Common Spoonbill, White-eared Duck, Black Tern and a many others.
