BRIEF DESCRIPTION OF THE VISIT:

This trip is mainly focused on the observation of two of the great woodpeckers of Spain, the black woodpecker and the white-backed woodpecker that is restricted in Spain to the mountains of Navarre.

Our first destination will be two Navarrese gorges, that of Arbayun and that of Lumbier. In these two gorges, the rock-dwelling birds that find shelter in them stand out, such as Griffon Vultures, Egyptian Vultures, Golden and Bonelli's Eagles, Blue Rock Thrush and hopefully some Wallcreeper that has not yet gone to higher mountain areas. Nor would it be surprising if a Bearded Vulture flies over us when we walk through these two gorges.

We will spend the next day discovering the different trails of the Irati Forest in search of Black Woodpeckers and White-backed Woodpeckers. At this time of year, these two species are in heat and it is not difficult for them to claim within their territory, which will greatly help us locate these two species so desired by Spanish ornithologists. Other species that we will be able to spot in these places are the Goldcrest, Marsh Tits, Eurasian Treecreeper, Citril Finch, Common Crossbill, Common Bullfinch, and Yellowhammer as the most outstanding.
