DESCRIPTION OF THE TOUR:

The first day we will visit the Nava de Fuentes and Boada Lagoons.

These two lagoons are well known for the large concentration of Greylag Geese that protect in them during winter. Other species of Geese also come with them, such as the Barnacle Goose, White-fronted Goose and, to a lesser extent, Bean Goose.

It is also a wintering point for Eurasian Wigeon and Northern Pintail.

In the reeds that surround the Lagoon of La Nava we will look for Reed Bunting.

In the fields that surround these lagoons it is not difficult to find steppe Birds such as Great Bustards and Black-bellied Sandgrouse.

The second day we will dedicate to visit the lagoon complex of the Villafáfila Lagoons.

This is nestled in an endorheic basin where cereal plains predominate with gentle slopes, there is a set of stationary lagoons and salt flats that serve as wintering for many Waterfowl where Graylag Geese find the second largest refuge within the Peninsula Iberian after Donana.

It also highlights the large number of Great Bustards in this Tierra de Campos and to a lesser extent the Little Bustards and Black-bellied Sandgrouse.
